

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates. The cable ownership cap is a crucial element of our democratic media, and it should not be weakened.

As it is in today's media the public has little to no access to media. If the FCC is to drop the laws that barely protect us then we the public has lost their right. The first amendment doesn't say that specific corporations and conglomerates have the right to press and speech. It says United States citizens have those rights. Any law that is going to restrict access is going against the people's rights.
